DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

1. New corrected drawings are required in this application because figures 1, 2, and 4-6 include shading, which makes the drawing's elements and details difficult to read and understand. Correction is required. See 37 CFR 1.84(m).
2. Applicant is advised to employ the services of a competent patent draftsman outside the Office, as the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office no longer prepares new drawings. The corrected drawings are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. The requirement for corrected drawings will not be held in abeyance.
3. Figures 1 and 2 should be designated by a legend such as --Prior Art-- because only that which is old is illustrated. See MPEP § 608.02(g). Corrected drawing sheets are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. The replacement sheet(s) should be labeled "Replacement Sheet" in the page header (as per 37 CFR 1.84(c)) so as not to obstruct any portion of the drawing figures. If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 1, 3-5, 7, and 9-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Thompson-Rohrlich (US 5,504,852).

Claims 1 and 7:

Thompson-Rohrlich discloses a graphical user interface having option areas (menus) for displaying to a user functions (menu objects). Thompson-Rohrlich teaches that the option areas may be activated (opened) when the user manipulates the input device (clicking on an icon representing a folder (menu)) for displaying in a separate menu the functions that are displayable to the user in the option area. Thompson-Rohrlich shows in fig. 3 a folder 32 (instrumentality) that activates window "Nutshell Mail" when the icon is selected using an input device (abstract; col. 1, lines 42-67; col. 3, lines 32-66).

Claims 3 and 9:

See claim 1. Thompson-Rohrlich teaches that users can activate (open) a menu (window) by clicking on an icon (abstract; col. 1, lines 42-67; col. 3, lines 32-66; fig. 3).

Claims 4 and 10:

See claim 1. Thompson-Rohrlich explains that after clicking icon 32 (fig. 3) a separate menu is activated, which lists the objects (options) contained in folder 32 that are hidden from the user's view (col. 3, lines 32-45).

Claims 5 and 11:

See claim 1. Thompson-Rohrlich teaches a graphical user interface having a plurality of option areas (fig. 3).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claims 2 and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Thompson-Rohrlich and King et al (US 6,307,549 B1).

Claims 2 and 8:

Thompson-Rohrlich does not teach an instrumentality comprising a sequence of keystrokes. However, King discloses a reduced keyboard using word level disambiguation to resolve ambiguities in keystrokes (abstract; col. 2, lines 61-67).

King teaches that users can enter a sequence of keystrokes to be interpreted as a system command such as accessing a menu (col. 3, lines 44-48; col. 18, lines 19-23). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one ordinarily skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Thompson-Rohrlich's graphical user interface to include King's teaching of accessing menus because the user is enabled to manipulate icons or windows by pressing a key or a series of keys whenever the use of another input device such as a mouse is not possible or just as a second option.

8. Claims 6 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Thompson-Rohrlich and Wong et al (US 6,175,364 B1).

Claims 6 and 12:

Thompson-Rohrlich teaches that the menus (viewers) may change color or the icons may change appearance upon finding new files meeting a search criteria (col. 6, lines 49-52; col. 8, lines 25-29) but does not that each option area (menu) comprises a separate color. However, Wong discloses a method for interfacing graphical user interface (GUI) container with graphical user interface component objects. The GUI includes a plurality of sliding panels (containers) located on the edges of main window of the GUI. A user may access a container by manipulating the "handle" of the sliding panel. Wong teaches that a unique color is used to identify a particular sliding panel (col. 2, lines 41-54; col. 3, lines 19-28; col. 4, lines 54-67; col. 5, lines 1-7). Thus, it would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to modify Thompson-Rohrlich's GUI to include Wong's use of color to identify different menus because as Wong says the use of different colors enable the user to distinguish between menus.

Conclusion

9. The prior art made of record on form PTO-892 and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Applicant is required under 37 C.F.R. § 1.111(c) to consider these references fully when responding to this action. The documents cited therein teach creation of menus containing a list of options (menu objects) that are hidden from the user and are displayed when the user manipulates an instrumentality (such as an icon).
